About the Additional Pension Plan (additional premiums)

- * If you pay ¥400 more per month in addition to the flat rate premium, you will receive an additional pension (¥200 x number of months paid) annually when you start receiving your old-age basic pension.
Example: If the total amount of additional premiums paid was ¥40,000 (¥400 x 100 months), ¥20,000 (¥200 x 100 months) will be added to your old-age basic pension every year.
- * When you apply to pay additional premiums, you will receive payment slips for the additional premiums for the month of application and beyond.
- * Additional premiums will be added from the month you apply. You cannot make retroactive payments.
- * If you request to withdraw from paying additional premiums, your payment amount will be changed to the flat rate premium from the month prior to the month of your request. However, additional premiums already paid through pre-payment will not be refunded, and will be reflected in the amount of your pension.

If paying your premiums is difficult

Note: For inquiries, contact the National Pension Section (see reverse side)

- * You can apply for an exemption from premium payments if you have difficulty paying due to unemployment, economic reasons, etc., and meet the income standards set by the government. Available options include full exemption and partial exemptions (1/4, 1/2, or 3/4 of the premium amount).
- * If you are a student, you may be eligible for the special payment system for students.
- * If you are under fifty, you may be eligible for the contribution postponement system.

A separate application is necessary to join these systems.

Notes:

1. If you are enrolled and you are approved for an exemption or the like, you will be automatically withdrawn from the additional pension.
2. Your old-age basic pension will be reduced for the period when the exemption is approved.

Please also see the reverse side.

- * To apply for automatic account transfer, please bring your savings account book, personal seal registered with your account, and a document that lists your basic pension number (pension handbook, notice of basic pension number, etc.) to a financial institution or the pension branch office. For New National Pension Program Enrollees

Always keep this in a safe place.

After you complete the enrollment procedures, the Japan Pension Service will send you a notice of basic pension number and a payment slip (for the month of enrollment in the National Pension Plan and beyond). Since it takes time to create a basic pension number, it will take about two months for the documents to arrive.

To receive your pension

For the National Pension Plan, as a rule, the person has to be enrolled for 40 years from the age of 20 to 59.

Those who fulfill more than 10 years (120 months) of the qualifying recipient period (*) for the old-age basic pension usually receive it from the age of 65. In addition, to receive the Disability Basic Pension, you must meet a certain condition of payment which starts from the date of your first medical examination up to the day prior.

* The period for receiving qualification includes the payment period and exemption period of the national pension payment, enrollment period of employee pension (aid society), period as a Category III insured person and combined target period. The combined target period is based on various requirements, so please contact the pension branch office for details.

Lump-Sum Withdrawal Payments

Note: This system is only for foreign residents.

As a rule, foreign residents who have an address in Japan must enroll in the National Pension Plan as a Category I insured person between the ages of 20 and 60 (excluding those enrolled in an employee pension plan and Category III insured persons). If a foreign resident who has paid National Pension Plan premiums for six months or more moves out of Japan before receiving any pension, you can apply for the lump-sum withdrawal payment. Applications for this will only be accepted for two years after the date in which the foreign resident ceases to have a domicile in Japan. Please contact the pension branch office for more details.
